Patrol for Pleasanton

Cheese Factory doesn't need permit, city says

PLEASANTON — Friendly persuasion was getting the desired results with the Cheese Factory's sewer discharge problems and it was not necessary to issue the discharger a sewer permit, despite a 1966 ordinance requiring one, top city officials told The Times yesterday.

Councilman Frank Brandes last week released to The Times information about a Kennedy Engineers study of Cheese Factory sewer discharges which recommended the factory do on - site pretreatment and pay a much higher annual sewer service fee because of the plant's extra impact on the city's Sunol Boulevard Sewage Treatment Plant.

Brandes also noted in his release that the Cheese Factory exceeds residential levels for Biochemical Oxygen Demand (BOD) and according to a 1966 city ordinance it should get a special permit from the Public Works Department because of those discharge levels.

Alan Campbell, who was the city's Director of Public Works in the early days of that ordinance and who still supervises that department in his current job as Assistant City Manager, commented about the Cheese Factory's lack of a discharge permit.

"Without question any new industry coming in would have to get a permit. Just how do you treat an existing industry? When the Cheese Factory finishes its work, it would be issued a permit. But a permit is just a piece of paper. The important thing is just so we get the thing running right,"said Campbell.

Campbell said that the city went over the discharge problem with the Cheese Factory in 1966 when the ordinance was passed. Even then, the factory's owner was hauling the whey, which contains the greatest part of the BOD problem, said Campbell.

City Attorney Ken Scheidig was asked why the city never enforced the permit requirement for the Cheese Factory.

Scheidig said enforcement is up to the city manager's office. His office is called in only when something is to be prosecuted. His office is the "court of last resort," said Scheidig.

Apparently the city staff was satisfied to sit down and reason with the Cheese Factory and was happy with the results it achieved, said Scheidig.

Scheidig read The Times the subsection in the ordinance which stated that the fee "shall not exceed the actual cost to the city for preliminary studies, engineering, additional administration, processing, and plant expansion costs, if any."

Kennedy Engineers devoted a separate study to the Cheese Factory waste discharges in October, 1975. Would the pro - rated cost of the study be appropriate as part of the fee if the city decides to issue a discharge permit to the Cheese Factory?

No, because the study was part of an overall study which the city undertook when it was evident improvements were needed to the Sunol sewer plant, said Edgar. Other major dischargers were studied as part of the overall study issued in June, 1975. They included Kaiser Research Center, the county fairgrounds, and Villa Armando Winery, all of which are not contributing any special problems, said Edgar.

Six injured as Dublin party erupts

DUBLIN — Six persons, including three sheriff's officers, were injured after a party on Peppertree Road apparently got out of control Saturday night.

According to reports, an estimated 200 juveniles partying at a home on Peppertree brought neighbors' complaints of excessive noise. A sheriff's department spokesman said officers were dispatched to the home several times to quiet the party without success.

Approximately 60 juveniles were observed drinking in front of the home and on an adjacent street, the spokesman said. Fighting broke out when eight deputies and reserve officers attempted to make arrests.

Three men and three sheriff's officers sustained injuries in the fracas. All required hospitalization at Valley Memorial, the spokesman said.

Robert Lee Leach, 19, of Hayward was transferred to Highland Hospital in Oakland. He was later released to the sheriff's department with no report of injuries or treatment administered, according to a hospital spokesman.

Steven Glenn Edward, 19, of Tamarack Drive, and Daniel Lee Burgard, 21, of Amador Valley Boulevard, were both treated and released from Valley Memorial.

Leach was booked on suspicion of resisting arrest and battery against a police officer. Edward was booked on suspicion of battery against a police officer, and Burgard on suspicion of resisting arrest.

Sheriff's officer Gary Kiefer, and reserve officers Louis Lehnus and Norman Klieno sustained a variety of minor injuries during the altercation, the sheriff's department spokesman said.

Final hearing for Amador budget set

The 1976-77 budget for the Amador Valley Joint High School District will be formally aired at a public hearing tonight.

Trustees convene at 8 p.m. in the District Educational Center, 123 Main St., Pleasanton.

Tonight's meeting is the final opportunity for district residents to question any aspect of the budget before it is sent to the county.

While the $9.4 million budget is the primary item on the agenda, the board has several other important matters to pass on, including busing agriculture students, the classified employees' salary and fringe benefit proposal under Senate Bill 160, course and textbook matrix, fiscal support of the Student Attendance and Review Board (SARB), an agreement with the chief project representative for the Amador High library addition, and awarding of bids for bleachers and lighting at the Foothill High School football field.

Dublin School switch opposed

DUBLIN — Residents In Action (RIA) will present their alternative to any possible conversion of Dublin School at the next Citizens' Advisory Committee (CAC).

In stating this at last night's Murray School Board meeting, RIA members also expressed opposition to a survey sent out to district residents three weeks ago.

Lenore Holmes, spokeswoman for the group, said they objected to the agenda for the CAC meeting of Sept. 1.

Mrs. Holmes' remarks and those of Jerry Herrington did elicit an admission from Wally Moreskine, staff liaison to the CAC, that "at least two, possibly three meetings will be held before the CAC submits its recommendations to the board on Oct. 4."

RIA members, some 25 concerned residents in the Dublin school area, also urged the attendence of more than just one board member at the Sept. 1 gathering.

The group opposes conversion of Dublin from K-8 to solely 7-8, but says it supports the board in an action that will end crowded conditions at Donlon.

Donlon, a K-8 facility, has the largest enrollment of any district school and is located on the Pleasanton side of I-580.

Other concerns expressed by RIA last night touched on busing, who will make a cost study of conversion, and whether approved (status quo or conversion) would be temporary (two to four years).

"We, as long time residents of the Murray School District, object to the possible loss of our neighborhood school and the gain of future residents south of I-580 enjoying a new neighborhood school."

The latter referred to a statement RIA allegedly gathered from a "reliable source."

Before adjorning to a personnel session, board members held a brief budget hearing and then approved a 1976-77 ledger in the amount of $8,098,292.

Audience members also questioned trustees on the status of the Dublin School swimming pool. District business manager Phil Chubb said he expected a proposal for use of the pool from a handicapped organization sometime after Aug. 10.

Schools mull anti-sex bias statement

LIVERMORE — The Livermore Unified School District's controversial Title IX anti - sex discrimination statement is on the agenda for tonight's school board meeting.

In order to qualify for some $1.1 million in federal funding, the district must comply with federal regulations by adopting a policy forbidding discrimination in school programming on the basis of sex. Other local school districts have already complied as a matter of routine, but some Livermore officials are not happy with the implications of the policy.

The Title IX statement follows a long list of other agenda items, including: Renewal of the district's property and liability insurance, despite greatly increased rates; signing of contract and approval of bonds for relocating two portables at Junction Intermediate School; approval of new French and Spanish textbooks for the high schools; acceptance of two resignations and five newly hired teachers; and readings of three proposed policies.

A public hearing on the $22 million Publication Budget is set for 8 p.m.

The meeting begins at 7:30 p.m. in the Education Center, 685 Las Positas Blvd. (at Murrieta).

DUBLIN — The 42 Japanese exchange students who arrived here Saturday met at Shannon Community Center for orientation. After that the young ladies headed for swimming pools offered by friendly natives and wound up the day at a Welcome Cookout at Mae Nissen Park in Livermore. The students are here under a program sponsored by the International Friendship Federation U.S.A. of Dublin. Besides their cultural exchange plans, an object of the group is to practice conversational English and bone up on local history.

They have studied English in school but have had no opportunity to speak it and turned down a proposed trip to Disneyland in order to stay with their host families and "just talk."

The majority of the girls are freshmen and sophomores and come from various parts of Japan. Most of them are majoring in English Literature and Languages.

Helping them with their studies while in the U.S.A. are two teachers; Tanya Clark, Beverly Phibbs and their assistant teachers, Stacy Baar and Maureen Berejka. Classes will be held at the Shannon Community Center in Dublin.

The students are accompanied by two of their own professors; Takao Taguchi and Itaru Nagano plus tour guide Fusao "Bill" Noguchi.

Several local families volunteered to be hosts to the young ladies and are providing room and board in their homes.

Besides joint activities with their host families, the students will be sightseeing throughout the area via bus and walking tours. Dances, barbecues, a trip to Aptos Beach and a Sayonara Potluck Dinner are some of the other events planned.

Expenses for their trip are being provided by the young ladies themselves.

Student members of the tour are: Yoko Aoki, Yoshie Arai, Kuniko Awano, Yoshiko Kaneko, Kumiko Kawabata, Hidemi Kawamata, Miuoko Kenmizaki, Sumiko Kinoshita,L Mikiko Kogure, Kayo Matsunaga, Chihara Morimura, Keiko Morino, Etsuko Obanai, Hiroko Oouchi, Hisako Ota, Mariko Shiraishi.

Kimiko Takamura, Noriko Takayanagi, Hiroko Teranishi, Tomoko Yokoyama, Taeko Namba, Kuniko Sakai, Kazue Takeuchi, Kayoko Hitomi.

Hisae Shibasaki, Miki Horie, Hiromi Tsubata,Akiko Shiraishi, Fumiko Ohara, Junko Irie,Hitomi Koike, Akiko Nagai.

One of the first lessons learned by the visitors was that not all American photographers wear long beards and strap sandals as they had supposed.

The first one they saw was a lady dressed up in high-heels and a suit.

Showing a healthy sense of humor they greeted her with a burst of laughter at their misconception.

All the stars were out at Del Valle

LIVERMORE — Not a bite of food was served at this party, not a drop of drink.

But, like all good parties, it made people want to linger on.

The hosts were East Bay Regional Park District naturalists Aliceann Cantelow and Joanne Dean; Chabot College astronomer Stuart Inglis; and Lawrence Livermore Lab astronomy club president Jerry Potter.

The guests were assorted amateur stargazers from as far away as Hayward and Fremont — toddlers and grandparents and mostly young adult types. Not to mention two irrepressible adolescent boys who chattered about sidereal time and coordinates as their father stood by muttering darkly.

An enormous crowd of 50 or 75 people, especially considering that gray clouds had hung over the Valley all day Saturday, blotting out the sky and leading many to despair of seeing anything through the telescopes.

But, as at all good parties, the weather cooperated in the end. Just as darkness fell the clouds rolled back, revealing first a sprinkling of brightly glittering stars, later, as the sky grew blacker, a stunning spray of crystalline chips of light that curved from one horizon to the other.

Jerry Potter excitedly bounced from the eight-inch Celestron to the 10-incher, fixing the focus, answering questions. Mounted grandly on tripods, the big telescopes overshadowed two smaller models that were also trained on the heavens.

"The Ring Nebula," Jerry announced, as if he were showing off his new baby. Fifty people fell into line to look through the 10-incher.

"(Gee, if I'd known there would be a crowd like this I'd have brought the third telescope,)" he was heard to mumble.

You line your eye up just so with the tiny eyepiece ... and suddenly, there it is, shimmering unimaginably far away in outer space ... a smoky black ring of gas against white pinpoints of light.

"Andromeda Galaxy over here." Through the other telescope you see a white cloud. If you could resolve it into specks, you would learn each speck is a star, each star a sun, perhaps circled with worlds like our own.

Now they're pointing the big lens at the second star in the handle of the Big Dipper. A bright star, you can't miss it.

Lest the "star party" degenerate into a purely aesthetic experience, our hosts had planned a scientific prelude to the stargazing.

Beginning at 7:30 p.m., they had shown slides and talked about astronomy at the nearby campground amphitheatre.

Some of us chose to forego the lectures, but we understand astronomer Inglis enthralled the crowd with his comments on the current exploration of Mars and his descriptions of newly discovered meteor craters in the United States.

Slides of constellations were also shown to the stargazers; later, naturalist Dean pointed out the star patterns "in person" when the sky got dark enough.

There were no planets in the sky Saturday night; not even the moon, which skulked behind a hillside and then slid from view.

It had been planned that way, since the moon's brightness would have spoiled viewing of some of the stars, galaxies and nebulae.

On the other hand, two satellites glided across the heavens, easily visible to those who brought binoculars. And three meteorites streaked across the sky — giving everyone the chance to sight at least one "shooting star" by the end of the evening.

The party didn't break up until close to midnight. One lingering guest suggested having a meteor-shower party on Aug 11, the day meteor showers are supposed to reach their maximum this year. (Every summer, the earth passes through a clump of asteroids and a few of these orbiting chunks of rock get pulled into the earth's field of gravity, only to burn up in the friction of the atmosphere.)

Nobody wanted to promise a meteor-shower party. But there will be at least two more star parties this season.

The first will be Saturday, Aug. 28. Potter promises a great view of Jupiter on this night, complete with colorful bands and spots and four fast-moving moons.

The second party will be Sept. 25. Warm clothes, sturdy shoes, a blanket and binoculars are suggested equipment.

Also, perhaps a little flask of some warming beverage, since our hosts don't believe in refreshments.

Handicapped gain access to the world

Those new telephones in pay booths are much lower to the ground, which means an entire segment of the population which lobbied for lower phones can use them just like able-bodied people.

The phones being installed in the valley, plus many other new wrinkles in construction, such as ramps in office buildings and special parking places in front of food markets are the results of lobbying efforts by handicapped people who are fighting for their place in society's mainstream.

Those colorfully painted parking spaces for handicapped people in front of the Livermore Safeway store probably were the first sign in the valley that society is now thinking more about the handicaps people in wheelchairs have in gaining access to a building.

But that is just the first step in the valley. Thanks to a change in the state building code beginning last month, new buildings will have to be accessible to persons in wheelchairs. And old buildings which have any remodeling work done at all must make modifications to accommodate the handicapped.

The building code now specifies certain turning radiuses which will enable a person in a wheelchair to get into a restroom for example. It also opens handicapped access to more buildings than ever.

For the past seven or eight years, publicly-owned buildings had to provide accommodation for the handicapped. In 1972 that was extended to private facilities like restaurants, motels, and bus stations which invite the public in.

Now the law has been extended to all office buildings, aircraft hangars, auction rooms, assembly buildings — in short, a wide variety of places where handicapped people can work or socialize, but have been denied it for years because of the physical barriers of the architecture.

In Alameda County the prime lobbying group for the handicapped, both the physcially disabled and the blind — has been the Center for Independent Living.

But as good as the changes have been so far, they've just been the tip of the iceberg, as far as the handicapped's needs are concerned, said Phil Draper, Executive Director of the center.

"There is a whole social and economic barrier," said Draper. "Where old buildings exist, it keeps people from employment, social things, recreation."

There is also a problem with society's attitude toward the handicapped, which, of course, is why progress in this area has been so slow.

"People are not quite aware of this," said Draper. "They have the disabled in role types; they think the disabled are a sexual, or mentally retarded, or many other things."

Draper thinks that handicapped persons themselves will be a major source of changing it. Education, especially of the handicapped themselves, will be area which changes it them most, he feels.

The way the handicapped are educated now, it's no wonder they haven't made much progress yet, Draper said. Segregation of the handicapped from the able-bodied is built into the educational methods and there is no easy way for the handicapped to get into the mainstream, he said.

It's a situation where the disabled are fed the able-bodied people's inaccurate images of the handicapped; then they live up to that image, said Draper.

"Able-bodied kids can look up to heroes; disabled children don't have anyone to look up to. There are disabled heroes, but when Franklin Roosevelt was President, they tried to minimize and hide his disability. They always took pictures of him from the waist up and didn't show his wheelchair," said Draper.

SR building increases

Lesher News Bureau

MARTINEZ — County building activity in June was up over the same period a year ago, figures released by the county building department show.

A similar report was issued for the city of Lafayette, whose permits are issued by the county.

A total of 764 permits, worth $17.6 million, was issued last month, compared to 427, worth $5.2 million a year ago.

Leading the permits were single family homes, 317 of which were issued at a value of $14.1 million. While industrial buildings were next in value, $1.1 million, only six permits were issued.

Additions, alterations and conversions to homes were second in permits issued, 197, followed by 151 permits for structures other than buildings.

In Lafayette, a total of 78 permits, worth $1.4 million, were issued last month, compared to 62, worth $658,071, the same time last year.

Fifteen single family home permits worth $877,470 were issued for Lafayette, along with 37 permits for alterations and additions to homes.

Wider future for East Avenue?

LIVERMORE — The Livermore Planning Commission will hold a public hearing tonight to consider an amendment to the existing future width and special building setback lines along East Avenue between Nielsen Lane and Greenville Road.

The Public Works Department has asked the planning commission to consider the amendment which would widen East Avenue according to dimensions developed as part of a joint effort between the Alameda County and the City of Livermore Public Works Departments.

The special building setback lines have been developed by the Planning Department to reflect anticipated setbacks for development as proposed by the city's new general plan, Director of Planning George Musso has informed the Planning Commission.

Musso also noted that adoption of the future width lines "does not constitute approval of a project to widen the street, but it does indicate the city's intent for the final configuration of the street."

A proposed widening of East Avenue from Nielsen Lane to Greenville Road has been found by Musso to have no significant environmental impact.

The project calls for East Avenue to be widened once future width lines are established and right-of-way is secured. Plans call for a traffic signal to be installed on East Avenue at Vasco Road and "at other locations along East Avenue as deemed necessary." The approaches to East Avenue on Vasco Road are also to be widened.

The proposed amendment to the future width lines would widen East Avenue by 50 to 100 feet at various points.

Musso noted the special building setback lines are established to "insure that buildings constructed before the street is widened will neither block widening nor be too close to the street after widening."

He said the amendment does not give the city the authority to regulate building setbacks for areas outside the city. However, the new lines will indicate to property owners the setback lines that would become effective once the property is annexed.

The Planning Commission will take public testimony on the future width and building setback lines at 8 p.m. tonight in the Municipal Court Chambers.

'Devil cult' in kidnap?

CHOWCHILLA (AP) — Twenty-six children and their bus driver who escaped from an underground prison may have been the targets of self-styled disciples of the devil, published reports said Monday.

The Fresno Bee and Sacramento Bee quoted law enforcement sources close to the investigation Monday as saying a rough draft of a ransom note demanding $5 million ended with the words "We are Beelsabub."

The reference to "Beelsabub" was an apparent misspelling of Beelzebub, one of several names historically referring to the devil.

According to the newspapers, investigators believe the note was handprinted by James Schoenfeld, 24, one of three men charged with the July 15 abductions at gunpoint. Also accused are Schoenfeld's brother, Richard, 22, and Fred N. Woods, 24.

The kidnap victims escaped July 16 from a moving van buried in a rock quarry. They were imprisoned there nearly 18 hours after their school bus was comandeered and the victims were herded into smaller vans for the ride to the rock quarry, 95 miles north of Chowchilla.

Agreement on health planning

Lesher News Bureau

MARTINEZ — Two out of the three applicants to operate a powerful new health planning agency for Alameda and Contra Costa Counties have reached an agreement.

Both Alameda and Contra Costa Counties' Boards of Supervisors will be presented terms of the compromise Tuesday morning.

The Health Systems Agency Coordinating Committee has agreed to withdraw its application and support the county - backed application, which calls for a joint-powers agreement.

The coordinating committee, supported by the now phased-out Comprehensive Health Planning Associations of both counties, supported the compromise in a 10 to 8 vote.

In the joint-powers agreement, the governing board will consist of six elected officials, three supervisors from Alameda County; two supervisors from Contra Costa County and a city council member from Contra Costa County chosen by the county mayors.

It will be the function of that board to appoint a 30-member governing body which will operate the agency.

The compromise asks thah the joint-powers application include as many members as possible who have already been chosen by the coordinating committee for the two sub-area councils.

The sub-area councils will have 30 members each. There will be six advisory committees which will report to the sub-area councils. The advisory committees will represent geographical areas within the counties.

Supervisors will also be asked to maintain the subsidies which formerly went to the Comprehensive Health Planning Associations.

Contra Costa County budgeted $40,000 a year in money and staff services to finance its health planning association.

The new Health Systems Agency will primarily be financed by the federal government.

Legislation before Congress asking that these agencies be financed at a level of 25 cents per capita. In the two-county area of Alameda and Contra Costa that would be $400,000.

HEW officials have estimated that the new agency will be in operation by the end of August.

Stark hits health plan exploiters

Rep. Fortney H. (Pete) Stark today accused health plan executives of "indulging in expensive creature comforts, such as limousines, while refusing to approve simple diversions, such as radio and television, for health plan members who are hospitalized."

Stark expressed concern that the "discovery of questionable luxury expenditures" by Blue Cross is "merely the tip of an iceberg of problems" involving health plan intermediaries.

Stark's views are part of testimony prepared for delivery before the Ways and Means Committee's Oversight Subcommittee, which is investigating Medicare's administrative costs and the role of private, generally tax - exempt intermediaries in managing the $15.5 billion Medicare program.

He began his investigation early this year after receiving a letter from a consituent complaining about the skyrocketing cost of health plan premiums "With a minimum of research, we found Medicare intermediaries running up huge bills for executive luxuries such as limousines and private aircraft, and billing portions of these costs to Medicare," Stark said."...I fear that the purchase of these items reflects a tendency of some health care executives to use public money for personal comfort rather than the public good."

"We could sell it in a minute," Van Voorhis said. "But people want to take it to Hong Kong or Arabia."

Van Voorhis termed Gentry a "Contra Costa boy."

"He's just always felt the boat belonged here."

Van Voorhis said the increased berthing fees in 1973 were seen as an attempt to force Gentry to move the boat out of Martinez.

"The city wanted Gentry to act first and we were waiting for the Marina master plan," he said.

Gentry stopped paying rent in August of 1973.

The Fresno used to carry 1,500 passengers across the Bay. It was last used on Puget Sound in Washington state, under the name "Willapa," before Gentry bought it.

Muddy ferry boat fantasy

By BRUCE ADAMS
Lesher News Bureau

MARTINEZ — The idle ferry boat mired in the mud at the Martinez Marina is for sale.

The boat, which worked the waters of the San Francisco Bay under the name "Fresno," has been here more than six years and has done little save get itself wedged in by the tide-carried silt.

The Fresno, a handsome vessel when seen from a distance, up close is as hollow and unfulfilled as the promises that heralded its arrival.

Former Danville developer Thomas Gentry bought the boat in 1969 and brought it to Martinez, claiming he'd make it an attraction of sorts, including shops aand a restaurant.

Back then, the city leased the old ferry slip to Gentry for $125 a month, the city hoping to provide a recreational facility as well as a source of additional revenue, and Gentry hoping for a tourist attraction.

But he goodwill broke down. The city claimed Gentry wasn't improving the ferry boat and Gentry claimed the city wasn't improving the Marina.

The monthy rent was upped to $1,000 three years ago and Gentry quit paying.

Law suits were filed and attorneys are still trying to reach an out-of-court agreement.

Gentry, now a resident of Hawaii, is reportedly offering the Fresno for sale.

Behind - the - scenes manipulators in Martinez are trying to find an interested buyer. At one point, Gentry tried to sell the Fresno to the city, but the city hasn't shown any interest.

Negotiations are picking up at the same time a larger city, Long Beach, is claiming financial hardship with a larger boat, the Queen Mary, also originally touted as a tourist attraction.

Long Beach officials recently said the Queen Mary is draining city coffers by about $6,500 a day. The number of annual visitors is down from one million in 1972 to 600,000 last year.

But if the City of Long Beach tried to junk the ship, it could face up to $30 million in breach of contract law suits.

Meanwhile, the Fresno's main cost to the city is the unrealized $1,000 a month in rental income. The city bills Gentry each month, but the funds are not listed in the budget. If he were suddenly to pay, the money would be considered a "windfall" and listed in a special budget account.

Gentry's attorney, Tom Van Voorhis, said the Fresno is "not actively" for sale.

"If the right user came along we'd sell it, but Gentry's main concern is preserving the boat for public use on the San Francisco Bay."

The enchanting Mount Fujiyama and a hand-painted fan are popular symbols of the country Sam Cohen has come to love. Through a cultural exchange program he initiated and as president of the Japanese-American Citizens League, he hopes to promote a deeper understanding between Americans and Japanese.

Cohen? Doesn't sound Japanese!

By JEAN McKENNA

Sam Cohen of Livermore, of Jewish extraction, becomes the first non-Japanese charter president of a chapter of the Japanese-American Citizens League — it's a national first.

Yet his natural heritage doesn't dampen the enthusiasm Sam Cohen has shown for his adopted heritage as he assumes presidential responsibilities for the new Tri-Valley Chapter of the JACL. He and his wife, Edythe, return a third time to Japan this month with dreams of founding a sister-city organization with citizens of that country.

Sam has sampled broiled eel, survived a severe typhoon and even slept on a mat on the floor — and loves it! The gentle-spoken and hospitable ways of the Japanese people have so captured his heart that he has dedicated himself to promoting greater understanding between Americans and citizens of that Far Eastern nation.

He has also actively participated in the organization of a local chapter of the JACL which is committed to protecting the legal rights of Japanese-Americans and other minorities, educating young people of Japanese heritage and all students to the Japanese culture, and helping Japanese - Americans preserve a sense of community through social activities.

A special education teacher with the Contra Costa school district, Sam has stressed education of impressionable young people before they form ideas of another culture or of their own culture based on popular misunderstanding or prejudice.

"To convince others of their Americanism, young people of Japanese heritage will often disassociate themselves from their background," explains Sam. "I have seen these young people snub a foreign - exchange student from Japan as a way of dealing with the pressures of prejudice."

It is important, Sam believes that these young people learn to accept their heritage with pride and to appreciate the richness of the Japanese culture. When visiting Japan, Sam was impressed with the uniqueness of the culture there, and feels that American citizens of Japanese background retain some of the best qualities of that people.

That there is a greater lack of prejudice among Japanese-Americans than among many minorities was the theme of a keynote speech given by Assemblyman Floyd Mori at the installation dinner for the valley's new JACL chapter. Sam voiced the opinion that "Mori has done a fine job of giving serious consideration to the needs of the Japanese-American community."

The JACL organization on the West Coast boasts a long list of pretigious and influential members in the political arena and in many professions, such as Floyd Mori. Founded in 1930 in Seattle, JACL has fought for the rights of Japanese - Americans during the disgraceful period of their internment during World War II, through the period of their reinstatement and the Civil Rights Movement. Its national headquarters are at San Francisco.

Today the league serves as a watchdog of legislative assemblies and of educational programs. Recently, the league successfully lobbied for a proclamation from President Gerald Ford which officially declared the end of the executive order authorizing internment of people of Japanese heritage. It was a formal, but meaningful, gesture.

Promoting the goals of the league on a grassroots level through the Tri-Valley JACL will be Dr. Jerry Watanabe, vice-president; Darlene Okabe, recording secretary; Edy Cohan, corresponding secretary; Walter Funasaki, treasurer; and Susan Yamamoto, Richard Yamamoto, Ted Komoto, Steven Lai, Tom Mori and Judy Takeda.

All residents of Livermore, Pleasanton, Dublin, San Ramon, Danville and Sunol are welcome to join the league which places no restrictions on its membership. Further information on league activities is available from Sam at 443-5290.

For the past five years Sam and his wife have operated a Japanese-American Cultural Exchange Program singlehandedly, bringing a number of young Japanese students into valley homes for a year's experience at an American high school. Because of his special interest in this area, Sam hopes the JACL will become involved in cultural exchange, possibly an adult program.

Once again, the Cohens will host a Japanese student, Kimiu Takano of Shizuoka, while she attends Livermore High School this year.

"Japan has been so isolated and so little understood in the past, that the gap between our two cultures is very great," Sam admits. Yet, with the sensitive enthusiasm of Americans like Sam, a bridge of friendship can be built among people of divergent cultural backgrounds to the enrichment of all.

Cutting hair to cure cancer

Pleasanton's Maid, Julie Hemming, is the first in line to make an appointment for a hair style in the 24-hour 'style-athon' planned Aug. 15 to benefit St. Jude's Children's Research Hospital. Tony Rovai of Tony's Hair Fashions in Pleasanton will host the benefit assisted by Mindy Balbach. Other participating local shops will be Vaughn's of Dublin, Pleasanton Valley Barber Shop, and Man of Today Hair Design of Fremont. All donations to the style-athon ($10 minimum) will benefit the largest childhood cancer research center in the world. Stylists will handle both men and women clients in the marathon cutting session.

Convenience food cost study

Starting from scratch isn't always the cheapest way around your kitchen Depending on the convenience food you choose, it may be more economical than your homemade version.

Here are some of the results to think about when you make up your grocery list:

Prices of some fresh vegetables can give you a good reason for using the processed kinds. When fresh vegetables are in season, they can be economical, but you need to compare carefully the prices of the fresh, canned and frozen varieties. Canned or frozen peas, lima beans and spinach cost only half as much as fresh. And, some of the fresh fruits cost more than their convenience "twins."

Making orange juice from the frozen concentrate is considerably less expensive than making it the old fashionednway by squeezing oranges by hand.

If some of this information makes you want to cast off your mixing bowl and measuring cup, DON'T Because when you enter the world of main dishes, convenience foods are often more expensive. Frozen beef, turkey and seafood dinners, sweet and sour pork, and pizza cost considerably more than your homemade specialties. But, spaghetti made from a package mix or canned is less expensive than made from scratch.

Last year, the U. S. Department of Argiculture completed a 12-month survey on more than 160 convenience foods. The study compared the cost of the convenience foods with the ingredient costs of comparable home-prepared items.

For the results, send for a free copy of "For Convenience Sake," Consumer Information Center, Dept. 36, Pueblo, Colorado 81009.

Hekaton Classic bike tour set by Spokesmen

The triple-loop Hekaton Classic bike tour hosted each year by the Valley Spokesmen Touring Club is set Sunday, Sept. 5 through the scenic Eastbay countryside.

Not a race, but a tour intended for sport and pleasure, the Hekaton offers three loops of 25, 50 and 200 miles respectively. The 25-mile loop covers flatlands in the Dublin, Danville and Alamo area. The 50-mile loop covers the above and extends through the mildly rolling Tassajara Foothills.

The 100-mile Hekaton loop is a strenuous route including Niles and Palomares canyons, the San Leandro, Oakland and Berkeley hills, and San Pablo Dam area.

For information call Don Patterson at 443-1463.

Newcomer gathering

Cool sherbet punch is the attraction at the Aug. 4 meeting of the Livermore Newcomers Club.

Host for the 7:30 p.m. gathering will be Lou Struve of 1839 Vancouver Way. Those planning to attend should call Lou at 455-6049, Ellen Scharffenbert at 447-6043 who can also arrange transportation.

The club is also anticipating a Sept. 1 orientation coffee at 10 a.m.

The Newcomers extend special thanks to July hostess Nancy Adams, and to Arlene Burt and Sue Richards who provided refreshments.

Lilly of the Valley

Marriage once entered into is basically the same for all. Webster's dictionary gives one definition of the state as, "a social institution whereby men and women are joined in a special kind of social and legal dependence for the purpose of founding and maintaining a family."

How that "institution" is entered into by two people, the attitude taken, the seriousness of the state and family cooperation will naturally help the sometime rocky relationship to sail through life with the capability of overcoming disappointments and problems to an advantage of the partners.

We had an opportunity of attending our first Spanish wedding. Other weddings we have attended pretty much followed the same format. This wedding was a delight and experience to observe.

It was obvious from the start that this mother, father and six children, were a close, warm family. That doesn't mean everything in their life must have gone smoothly, but at an important occasion for one member of the family — a wedding — they all offered their fullest cooperation to see that this indeed was "her day."

The 17-year-old bride received the love and attention that perhaps never again in her life will be completely hers as it was on this day. It was a small, family and friends event, with the ceremonies beginning in the church with the exchanging of warm meaningful words between the two.

Following the ceremony, a reception with all the trimmings was held at a nearby facility. The mother-of-the-bride was a perfect hostess seeing that family and friends were all warmly greeted the minute they came onto the premises.

These people seem to have going for them what the entire world talks about yet not practices and that is — love. A genuine, warm love which they are not embarrassed or afraid to express. To be so sincere, it is obvious this affection for one another begins at a very tender age and only grows through and with the sharing of life's problems.

A very tender moment was expressed by the head of the household, the father, and his first married daughter during the "bridal dance." (A bridal dance is a custom whereby participants at the wedding pay to dance with the bride or groom.) Perhaps words of wisdom to his young child came from the devoted father as he affectionately looked into his daughter's eyes and spoke softly. Then came the second of a warm kiss and strong embrace followed with tears of joy and sadness.

The brother of the father came upon the scene at the appropriate moment — letting the two share this precious step in life, yet not allowing it to get too emotional.

So, as Renee and Juan go into wedded bliss, it is with warm, tender love that the union was united and may this continue for them along life's rocky road.

Lloyd Inlow, Vince Osburn of Livermore drool over motocross accessories displayed at LARPD's recreation fair.

Summer recreation

Summer school has ground to a halt — but there's still plenty to do in the Valley before fall sets in!

How about following friendly Alice Tetlow around Sycamore Grove, the Livermore Area Recreation and Park District's big new spread on Arroyo Road? A naturalist, Alice is planning to lead nature walks through the wild area, at 10 a.m. and 5 p.m. tomorrow only.

How about checking LARPD's summer brochure? Their programs run through the end of the month and may lead to a new interest, or polishing up an old skill.

LARPD also operates a gorgeous family campground at Lake Tahoe. It's just about the only campground that doesn't have to be booked months in advance — because it's for local residents' use only. The pine - studded camp is a short hike from a state beach and a 15 - minute ride from the South Tahoe casinos.

The Pleasanton Recreation Department and Valley Community Services District also have brochures listing programs, classes and special events. There's no cheaper way for a teen - ager to get from Dublin to Boulder Creek for a backpacking trip, or to the Russian River for a canoe trip, than to join one of VCSD's teen trips.

Your taxes are supporting the Valley's park systems and they are full of goodies. Sunol Regional Park has a small campground that gives the feeling of really getting away from it all.

For those who prefer the feeling of being surrounded, Del Valle in Livermore has a huge new campground with spacious sites and gleaming new showers and toilets.

Swimming? Del Valle Lake is a bit gravelly along the beaches, muddy along the shore — but also quite uncrowded, and unhampered with lifeguards. So bring on the inner tubes, rafts and snorkels (but watch the kids closely.)

Shadow Cliffs offers swimming off a sandy, lifeguarded beach. In late afternoon they don't even collect the 75 cents admission, so the working class can take a before - dinner dip and even barbecue some hot dogs, for free.

For something a little bit different, try getting sore muscles, and a wonderful sense of accomplishment, taking horseback lessons! One nearby place is Canterpoint Riding School, off Greenville Road near I - 580. Group lessons are $5 an hour and you can even catch, groom and saddle up your own horse.

Coming in out of the weather for a moment, the Lawrence Livermore Lab visitors' center beckons visitors with a scientific bent.

Would - be astronomers over the age of 5 are welcome in Chabot College's Friday evening and Saturday afternoon planetarium shows, which are free (call the campus in Hayward for directions, reservations.)

The Valley now has a beautiful little museum which is open 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., seven days a week. It's located at the Alameda County Fairgrounds, off Bernal Avenue in Pleasanton, and admission is free.

If you're the acquisitive type, drive out Dougherty Road or Camino Tassajara until you spot some gray, crumbly - looking rocks by the side of the road. Closer inspection reveals they're crammed with fossils — mostly beautifully preserved brachiopods, but if you're lucky you'll find fluted scallops, plant stems and other treasures. Of course, the closer you get to Mt. Diablo (which was shoved up out of the earth after the fossil layers were laid down) the more of these you may find just lying around.

Now it's time to stop down at the local library to check out a book on paleontology (and one of those new bestsellers while you're at it, and maybe a record or two and a little something for the kids.)

Who says it's a dull summer?

See the world upside down — like Kim Rogers of Fremont, showing off at LARPD's recreation fair last weekend.

For Tuesday, Aug. 3, 1976

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Your compassion for the underdog makes you vulnerable today. You could be drawn into a situation where another's excesses become your liabilities.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Judgments you make lean toward what you want them to be today. This is not a healthy perspective for you.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) In an attempt to expedite a difficult matter today, you could make frivolous promises. Unfortunately, others will believe you.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Overindulgence is something you must be mindful of today. Good things will be doubly appreciated if you take them in smaller quantities.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) A firm hand is required today if you are to impress others. Wishy washy decisions will not inspire underlings.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) While you're normally one who understates his role in everyday accomplishments, today you may be a shade too boastful.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You're very susceptible today in believing all you hear. A shrewd salesman could do a real number on your bank balance.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Don't let another make important decisions for you today. If you do, you will have to pay the piper.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Problems you must overcome today will be of your own making. They'll be caused by your failure to use your usual initiative.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Pride goeth before a fall. Your problems can be easily solved today if you don't let your pride override your good sense.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You have the choice today of rolling up your sleeves to get the job done, or resting on your laurels.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) The remarks of others cause you far too much concern today. You'll find ill will in statements where it never really was intended.

Opening lead — Q ♠

By Oswald & James Jacoby

South let West hold the first trick with his queen of spades after East followed with the eight. West continued with the trey and East played the king.

South had a problem. Assuming West had led from a six-card suit he could duck that second spade, take the third, play three rounds of diamonds and hope that East would have exactly three diamonds. South saw that that play would fail if spades were 5-4 and decided on another line.

He won the second spade and led back the 10. West won and could have beaten the hand by leading anything but a spade, but West was a firm believer in the principle that a trick in the hand is worth two on the table. He cashed his last two spades.

South chucked a heart and diamond while dummy shed red cards. East chucked a heart.

West led the queen of hearts. South won and played his second-high heart to squeeze East. He had to unguard either diamonds or clubs and South had his ninth trick.

Ask the Jacobys

A California reader wants to know if we ever underlead an ace against a suit contract.

The answer is that we do make such a lead, but we don't make it more than once in a lot of deals. It is one play that won't really hurt you if you never make it.

EBAL student reps to meet

PLEASANTON— Student representatives of all eight East Bay Athletic League schools will gather at Amador Valley High School Thursday afternoon for the first of a series of meetings on sportsmanship.

Several incidents involving students and coaches last year are the basis for the meetings.

Consideration will be given to establishing a code of ethics for coaching personnel of all league schools and trying to put a little less emphasis on "win - at - any - cost" competitiveness.

The initial meeting Thursday at 2 p.m. will involve five student body officers from each of the league schools and some faculty members.

Meetings will be held throughout the school year at each of the schools in the league— Amador Valley, California, Dublin, Foothill, Granada, Livermore, Monte Vista and San Ramon.

The Amador Valley High School student council has also announced it hopes to setup a "Sports Jubilee" this fall, involving students from all EBAL high schools. Student officer Robin Pina is coordinating plans.

Amador student council members also hope to make the annual freshman orientation set for September 2 an event to remember. Liz Shepherd, publicity commissioner for the student body, said they hope to acquire 150 purple and gold helium-filled balloons as a culmination activity for orientation day.

Lehr's swept out of tourney

AUBURN — Pitching and defense, which carried Lehr's Greenhouse of Pleasanton all season, proved to be the club's downfall at James Field here Sunday afternoon as Fruitridge of Sacramento defeated the valley team twice to win the Northern California Senior Babe Ruth baseball championship.

Fruitridge advances to the Pacific Southwest Regionals in Nogales, Arizona this week end.

Since Pleasanton had nipped Fruitridge, 1-0, Saturday night, they needed just one win Sunday to wrap up the title. But, the Sacramento nine rolled to a 6-1 victory in the first game and scored eight times in the eighth inning to take a 10-3 win in the extra-inning decider.

In the nightcap, Pleasanton, trailing 3-0 before the bottom of the seventh, scored three times to tie it. But the roof fell in after the teams changed sides; Fruitridge taking advantage of two errors, two walks and three hits to build its big inning.

Pleasanton manager Jim McClure used four pitchers in the second game.

Mark Bevilacqua started and went four innings before being relieved in favor of right - hander Rob Wicks, who fashioned a two-hit shutout the night before. Mike Krikorian, who finished the opener, took over in the eighth before Al Schaut, who lost the first game, came on to mop up.

Krikori got the loss while Mike Bishop earned the win for Fruitridge.

Pleasanton came very close to victory during the seventh - inning rally.

Dan Straface doubled to open the inning and Don Palmer followed with a single. Mays then towered a fly that Don Driscoll dropped in centerfield, allowing Straface to score and Palmer to go to third.

Mark Shoemaker fanned before Sam Jorgensen walked to load the bases. Chris DePrater blasted a single to center that brought Palmer and Mays home with the winning runs.

Mike Connolly, who ran for Jorgensen, went to third and DePrater to second on the late throw to home plate. But the threat ended when Brett Boldrini struck out and Greg Bellinger grounded to second.

The winners had seven hits while Pleasanton recorded six, Mays pacing the offense with two hits and a run scored. Art Gomez paced Fruitridge with three hits.

Pleasanton was never really in the first game.

Fruitridge scored a run in the first inning, added two in the second and two in the fifth before the losers got their only tally in the sixth frame.

In that inning, Pleasanton got a single from Palmer to score Straface from second. Straface had reached on an error and moved to second on a walk to Jorgensen to set up the blow.

Schaut went five innings, allowing 11 hits and striking out three. Krikorian went two, allowing just one hit while winner Driscoll scattered six hits, struck out eight and went the distance. —by Gary Brown

Locals tumble at MV invite

MISSION VIEJO — None of a contingent of local swimmers made it to the finals of Sunday's events in the Mission Viejo Invitational Championships here Sunday.

Dana Davidson, who swam a lifetime best in finishing sixth in the 200-meter freestyle Saturday, splashed to a 1:01.68 in morning qualifying, not good enough for either the finals or as a qualifying time for the national championships.

Katie Fleischer of Amador Valley High School, swimming for the Pleasant Hill club, also failed to make the cut, going 1:01.78. But Fleischer, along with three PHSC team mates, is assured of a berth in the nationals in the 400-meter medley relay.

In the 200-meter breast stroke, Dublin's Kevin McKenna (2:38.96) and Indonesian HaKie Njan (2:40.6) did not gain the finals. In the women's division, Anita Sapardjiman, making progress toward Indonesian national records, swam a non-qualifying 2:57.24.

This weekend, McKenna and two NorCal Aquatic team mates will make one last try at a berth in the Junior Nationals later this month in Nashville, Tennesee, in a special qualifying meet at Heather Farms Park in Walnut Creek.

McKenna will start in the 100- and 200-meter brest strokes, joined in the boys 15-18 group by youthful Monte Vista High School star Steve Czekala.

Nancy Thompson, who also made the trip south over the weekend, will enter the 100- and 200- meter freestyles as well as both the 100- and 200-meter back stroke events.

NorCal coach Bill Radley got some good news recently when 13-year old David Bottom began training with the team at California High School in San Ramon.

Both Joe, who also is the National Collegiate Athletic Association 50-meter freestyle champ, and another brother, Mike, are on full athletic scholarship at the University of Southern California.

"David will be as fast — if not faster — than his brothers," Radley enthused at poolside yesterday.

Los Diablos win title

A hat trick by former Chabot College forward Dave Anderson led Livermore's Los Diablos under-21 soccer team to a 5-1 win over the San Francisco Vikings and the championship of the Cal-Am Soccer Tournament at Emma C. Smith School in Livermore Saturday.

Los Diablos finished the season with a 7-1 record.

Greg Greenspan got the scoring started just five minutes into the game when he chipped a centering pass to Phil Tonne, who headed the ball in. Two minutes later, Anderson picked up his first goal off an assist from Mark Bryant. Danny Payne completed the first half scoring for Los Diablos, converting a pass from Dan Pegan with 30 minutes gone.

Fifteen minutes into the second period, Anderson dribbled into the penalty area and scored an unassisted goal. Ten minutes later, he wrapped up the scoring with a tally off a Tim Wade assist.

Halfbacks Kevin Burke, Scott Talbot and Mike Ramil played well for Los Diablos while goalkeeper Kevin Lennon held off the Vikings thanks to strong defensive work by Joe Masquelier, Greg Heier and Keith Teel.

Olympic funk: mock awards

MONTREAL — All the Olympic gold has been accounted for at the Summer Games, but there were some performances that went unrewarded. Herewith the unofficial Olympic Doused Flame awards, commemorating unusual performance under trying circumstances:

— The Progess - in - Electronics Award goes to Soviet Modern Pentathlon entry Boris Onischenko and his electrically bugged sword. Onischenko was caught with an epee which was rewired to register a touch even when there wasn't one during the fencing. He was disqualified.

— The Don't - Give - Up - the - Ship Award to British yachtsmen Alan Warren and David Hunt who, after finishing 14th out of 16 in the two - man Tempest event, burned their boat and, with as much dignity as possible, waded ashore.

— The Displaced - Person Award to Olmeus Charles of Haiti who was lapped nine times and finished five minutes behind everyone else in the 10,000 meters.

— The What's - In - A - Name Award to the Indian field hockey team which finished seventh despite the presence of nine players named Singh on the 16 - man roster.

— The Hell - Bent - For - Leather Award to the New Zealand field hockey team which skipped the post - game news conference after winning the gold and roared off in a bus towards the nearest pub.

— The Flick - of - My - Bic Award to the stadium worker who relit the Olympic Flame with his lighter after it was doused by a cloudburst. Horrified officials extinguished it again, then officially relit it with the torch which had been carried by assorted runners from Greece.

— The Let - It - All - Hang - Out Award to Polish Greco-Roman wrestler Andrzej Skrzylewski who caused a sensation when his wrestling tights split up the middle during a match.

— The Don't - Rock - the - Boat Award to Soviet canoers Sergej Petranko and Aleksandr Vinogrado who began congratulating each other after winning a race, tipped over their canoe and had to be fished out of the Olympic Basin by a motorboat.

— The I - Don't - Get - No - Respect Award to Soviet strongman Vasiliy Alexeev who lifted a record 591 pounds in the clean and jerk. "Maybe now my wife will pay attention to me," said the 344-pound Alexeev.

— The All - Italians - Look - Alike Award to Olympic basketball officials. When Egypt forfeited its game with Italy, officials decided to have the Italians score a ceremonial basket and Renzo Bariviera made the two-pointer. Officials inexplicably awarded the basket to Marino Zanatta and refused several requests to change their decision.

— And finally, the All - That - Glitters - Is - Not - Gold Award to Olympic medal winners. The gold medal, it turns out, is only gold-plated. It is valued at about $66.

So it goes.

Pouey's 76s win publinx

PEBBLE BEACH — Mike Pouey's consistency overshadowed a spectacular first round by unheralded Bob Davis and earned the San Jose golfer the Northern California Golf Association Public Links Championship at Spyglass Hill Golf Course here Sunday.

Although Pouey was four-over for the last three holes, his pair of 76's gave him a two-day total of 152, good for the title. Davis, of Concord, fired a blistering 71 Saturday (the only par-or-better round of the tourney), but fell off to an 83 Sunday.

Davis' triple-bogey seven on the final hole — when all he needed to win was a par — dropped him into a tie for second with San Mateo's Bill Aragona.

Livermore's pair of entrants, both from Las Positas stayed in the middle of the pack for both rounds. Victor Wolfe, fresh from a near miss in the national publinks, improved from an 81 to a 77 to finish im a tie for seventh.

Bob Fulton, whose 79 gave him a share of 11th Saturday, carded an 81 Sunday to remain in that position at tourney's end.

Wolfe, who went from hot to cold all morning, was not completely unhappy with his round.

"I hit the ball good all day," he said, adding, "I was pleased with the way I hit, but not with some of the breaks I got."

Some of the breaks that ired Wolfe may have been the fault of unmanicured greens. The University of the Pacific player, who three-putted four of the tricky surfaces, said, "The greens were inconsistent today, they may have been a bit longer."

Four birdies helped offset eight bogeys, including a double, by Wolfe, who believes he may have needed the tourney to settle back into a routine after the bright lights of the Minnesota event.

"I made too many mental mistakes and on this course you have to think," he explained. "One little miskake can kill you."

Fulton, a San Jose State student whose summer job has curtailed his golf schedule, took things easy in the tournament.

"I was into the trees a lot," he admitted Sunday, "But what the hell, they're such nice looking trees..."

Four other local golfers played in the handicap flights.

In the President's Flight, Jerald Lester of Sunol Valley lost 14 strokes on the second day, struggling to a net 164, 17 strokes behind winner Donal Ehmsen of Davis.

Interestingly, in a field of 5-11 handicappers, a high handicap, Ehmsen at 10, won the division.

In the 12 or more handicap Spyglass Hill Flight, Roger Young of Las Positas, whose net 70 had put him one stroke off the pace after 18, collapsed to a 108-20-88 Sunday to finish well back.

John Czapowski, another Livermore player, had his troubles. Within striking distance at 72 Saturday, the 15-handicapper fell off to an 80 for the second round to finish 11 strokes behind winner Michael Ayala of nearby Monterey Bay.

Ayala shot a 69-72-141 off his 12 handicap for the triumph.

Don Perkins of Sunol Valley was consistently back in the pack, recording a net 81-82-163 from his 12 handicap.

Cookie selects a new lifestyle

SAN FRANCISCO — Bill Bradley, the Rhodes scholar forward of the New York Knicks, has written a marvelous book, probing the inner psyche of the professional athlete.

"While their physical skill lasts," writes Bradley, "professional athletes are celebrities — fondled and excused, praised and believed. Only toward the end of their careers do the stars realize their sense of identity is insufficient ... In my case, I've been preparing for the end since my first year, but even so I can only hope that I will manage easily the withdrawal from what Phil Jackson calls 'my addiction.'"

These thoughts were poignantly brought to mind the other day when the phone rang, and the voice on the other end boomed out sonorously, "This is Cookie ... you know, Carlton Chester Gilchrist." An old friend.

Cookie Gilchrist had been one of those professional athletes who was a celebrity. In the early years of the fledgling American Football League, striving for respectability, he was the greatest of fullbacks. He did not have the credentials of a Jim Brown, his contemporary, but there were valid claims he was a better all-around football player. He was the AFL's first star of national stature in the pre-Namath days.

He was also contentious and congenial, the former quality making him a football itinerant who was shunted from Buffalo (where he had his peak years) to Denver to Miami, the latter quality making him a delight for writers.

In 1968, peddled once again to Cincinnati, his bad knee throbbing, Cookie Gilchrist quit abruptly at the age of 33.

"There comes a time in every man's life," he said, "when he must sacrifice fame and glory for a productive role in the business and social community."

Cookie Gilchrist is now 41 years old. He looks good. His weight is at 240 pounds, even lighter than when he played. His smile glows as it always did. He doesn't drink or smoke and even abstains from caffeine. He carries around a Bible in his shoulder bag which is well thumbed and which he says he reads every day.

The years since he stopped playing have been rough for him.

His marriage, to a Russian girl in Toronto had already broken up. His two boys live in Canada with their mother and aren't the least interested in athletics. His liaison with one of the most famous black models in America broke up after a couple of years because, she told Cookie, he couldn't support her in the style she was used to.

That really blew his mind.

"You say you love me," he said to her, "but I'm not a good enough man for you." He got into a dope trip, popping pills. He sampled cocaine. He drank. He had started a C.G. Mayd Services, Ltd., for domestics, in Denver and that had gone under.

Three years ago, Gilchrist took stock of himself.

"You've got to be more than a football player," he had once said. "You've got to be a person."

He looked around and realized that his own adjustment from what Bradley calls "the mixed blessing of notoriety" to "that inexorable terror of living without the game" was not a phenomenon, nor even unique. Lenny Ford, who was voted into the Pro Football Hall of Fame last year, died drunk and broke in a rundown hotel. Bob Ferguson, an All-American fullback at Ohio State, slipped into obscurity and was rediscovered during a two-week coma, from which he is now making a painful recovery.

The dilemma has not been restricted to the black athlete. Jackie Jensen found conversion to the real life of the non-athlete a traumatic experience. Even Jerry West, the Laker great who has retired economically fixed for life, is emotionally strung out — what do you do with your day after you've played 36 holes? on the golf course?

Three years ago, Cookie began work with an organization called The United Athletes Coalition of America and Canada. The purpose is to help athletes rehabilitate after their playing days are over, to get them in the mainstream of society or into youth work, a logical extension of their own lives.

"The comedown for two many is hard and fast," he says.

sports

His program has been endorsed in the Congressional Record by Congressman Jack F. Kemp, who was his teammate and quarterback with the Buffalo Bills when they won the AFL championship.

But for three years, Cookie has had problems getting the non-profit organization off the ground. The problems are essentially money. People tell him, "That's nice, what you're trying to do." But no one comes forth with the bankroll.

Park of the problem is Cookie. As a player, his main hassles with management were over money. He was supposed to be unmanageable and intractable. The stigma whether deserved or not, lingers. "He is suffering from his reputation," says O.J. Simpson. "It catches up with you."

So Cookie has had to rely on himself to keep his dream going. He estimates that he has gone $100,000 in debt.

But he persists in his plans to establish rural training centers for former athletes, in northern California, and allied youth camps.

To meet criticism that he has no professional expertise in this area — he didn't even go to college, jumping straight from high school in Brackenridge, Pa., to the Canadian League — he is accepting a fellowship at the University of California at San Diego. It was proferred by Dr. Arnold J. Mandell, the psychiatrist who is persona non grata with the pro football establishment for his controversial year spent counseling the San Diego Chargers on drugs and other problems.

Cookie plans to attend the university in the late summer and fall and will study psychotherapy methods. He wants to show, most of all, that he can be the guinea pig for the transition of glorified athlete to everday citizen.

Fords family champs

SAN FRANCISCO — Pleasanton physicist Frank Ford and his 22-year old son, Cameron, combined to win the championship flight of the Northern California Father and Son golf tournament at Golden Gate Park here Sunday.

The Fords overcame a formidable tandem to take home the crown. They gained a 2-and-1 victory over two-time winners Jim and Jim Jr. Diaz from Concord.

Alamo's George Najarian teamed with his son Dave, who helped Monte Vista to the North Coast Section title last spring, to win the Sportsman's Flight on the 20th hole over Bud and Biff Brody.

NORCAL FATHER AND SON TOURNEY

Championship flight — Frank and Cameron Ford defeated Jim and Jim Jr. Diaz, 2-and-1.

Roos/Atkins Flight — Edward and Edward Campos defeated Hal and Dan Armbruster, 5-and-4.

Sportsman's Flight — George and Dave Najarian defeated Bud and Biff Brody, second extra hole.

First flight — Tom and Bill Shepard defeated Frank and Frank Peralta by default.

Second flight — John and Bill Mackay defeated Dennis and Barry Falk, 1-up.

Third flight — Richard and Terry Miyashiro defeated Richard and Donald Silverman, 3-and-2.

Fourth flight — James and Don Kovacs defeated Herbert and Dave Nelson, 5-and-4.

Fifth flight — Arthur and Bill Dougherty defeated Tom and Tom Joyce, 5-and-4.

Sixth flight — John and Dennis McLaughlin defeated Ed and Chet Holland, 1-up.

Seventh flight — Joel Spear and Chris Spear defeated Herb and Marshall Janowitz, 5-and-4.

Amador falls to CC, 8-3

A five-run rally in the top of the fifth inning gave C and C Beauty the margin of victory as it beat Amador Linen, 8-3, in Livermore Area Recreation and Park District women's softball last week.

Thirdbaseman Diane Staedel ripped three singles for the winners, while lead-off batter Tia Griggs had a single and a double. Dianne Gull also had a pair of hits.

April Viggiano connected for a triple.

For Amador, Gayle Nolan singled three times and center - fielder Judy Lee singled and doubled. Debbie Steele and Lori Wilbur also recorded hits.

In another re-scheduled contest, lead-off batter Terri Rose slammed a triple and a single, scoring four runs, as Irby's Milk bopped Kavanagh, 14-5.

Marylou Reichmuth contributed three singles while Corliss Osbourn singled and tripled and Betty Ogden singled twice.

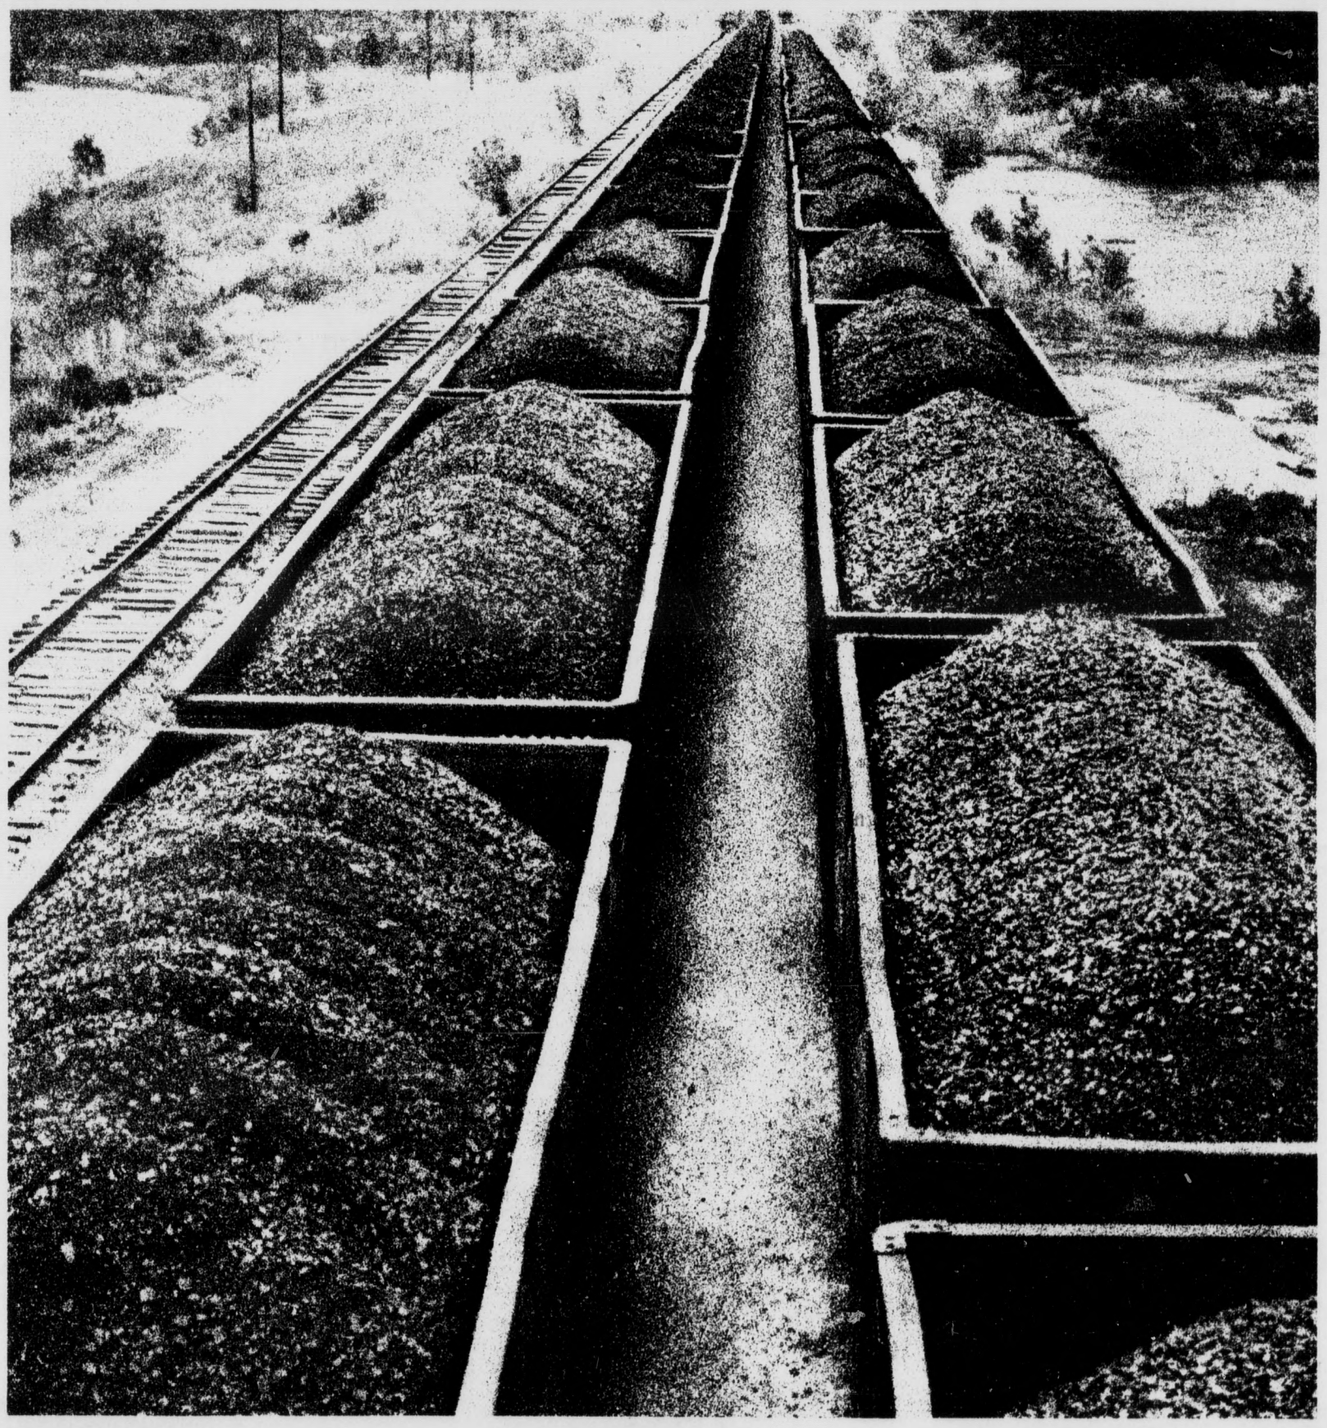
Sources of Energy—No. 7 of a series

There's enough coal to generate electricity in the U.S. for centuries. But it's no simple energy solution here.



First, the good news

The coal resources of the United States are large enough to satisfy all of the nation's energy needs for 200 years or more. Most of it is in the Western states, and fortunately much of it is low in sulfur content.

PG&E is actively investigating coal as a future fuel for power generation, and we have recently acquired substantial coal reserves in Utah.

Now, the bad news

Reliance on coal resources for a major part of California's energy supply would create considerable logistical and environmental problems.

Unfortunately, there is no coal in commercial quantity in California, and the closest is almost 1,000 miles away. A 2,000 megawatt power plant would require shipments of 137 rail carloads of coal a day and burning it would produce 900 tons of ash a day—a substantial waste disposal problem.

Even if approval could be obtained from sister Western states to burn coal there and transmit the electricity to California, it would be more costly than locating the plants in California.

However, we shall continue to work on solving the problems and to develop our coal resources. Coal is one of the primary energy sources needed to help meet California's growing energy needs.

Other sources of energy

There are 5 sources of energy which PG&E now uses for generating electricity.

Northern California has one of the nation's most extensive hydroelectric systems. It produces relatively inexpensive electricity. But nearly all economical and acceptable hydro sites have already been developed.

That's why natural gas and oil have become more prominent in our energy mix. Unfortunately, the costs of these fossil fuels have been skyrocketing. In just 5 years, the price of fuel oil has increased sixfold and the average price for natural gas has tripled, accounting for most of our rate increases.

We have the nation's only geothermal power development, largest in the world, and we are expanding it. However, we estimate it would supply only about 10 percent of our needs by 1985.

These limitations are reasons why our fifth primary source of energy—nuclear—is so important, and why we, like other utility systems here and abroad, have turned to uranium as power plant fuel. When our two nuclear units at Diablo Canyon go into operation, they can produce electricity for about 40 percent less than new oil-fired plants, despite higher initial construction costs.

Wind, solar, garbage, tides, ocean thermal differences, fusion and other developing technologies may someday help us supply your energy. Some may take years to prove out. Others may never become efficient or reliable enough to be competitive. But if and when they are ready, we'll be ready too. In the meantime, we must meet your demands for electricity.

Facing the problem together

The demand for electricity continues to grow, partly because population itself continues to grow. And the problem of meeting this growing demand is critical.

For our part, we will continue our urgent efforts to develop all available sources, to find new ways to use energy more efficiently, and to keep you provided with adequate energy and reliable service at the lowest possible cost. For your part, the effective way to help control the spiraling cost of energy is to use less of it. We encourage you to do so because the energy you use is too precious ...and too costly...to waste.

Save energy-
you'll save money, too.

Montreal—artistic success

(The following summary of the Olympic Games is written by a staff member who attended six days of the XXI Games in Montreal plus two days in Toronto, also a site for some of the contests)

Weighed against the underlying spirit of the Games and previous international gatherings in Munich, the Games of the XXI Olympiad held in Montreal, Canada would have to be adjudged an artistic success.

Artistic must be emphasized.

As far as furthering brotherhood and international cooperation, the Montreal Games were certainly no less a credit to the host nation than Munich.

Despite the eleventh hour pullout of African nations and the hassle over Taiwan - Republic of China's status, the Games generally went off smoothly, surviving the carping of a legion of critics from International Olympic Committee member Monique Berlioux on down to the media.

Most of the latter involved accomodations and real or imagined inconveniences.

One "Falstaffian" San Francisco sports writer was described in a Sunday edition of a Toronto paper thusly — "he was a regular at the bar setup for the press....keeping us up until 3 in the morning with his periodic yelling down the hallway, 'I hate this place.'"

An actual body count showed more media personnel than athletes (8,000 of the latter) in residence.

One of the thornier issues of the Games turned out to be the fleet of cars assigned to Games officials, news media and athletes. One report had it that 3,000 cars were assigned, thus causing cab drivers to stage a mini-revolt by blocking traffic in downtown Montreal. It proved a case of too little, too late.

Restaurants, souvenir stands and ticket - scalpers again proved the "big winners."

A ring of the latter were uncovered late in the going, prompting reporters to question aloud why organizers and police had taken so long.

Tickets to gymnastics, basketball and boxing, with face values of $10 or $15, were going for $60 to $70 and up. Persons stuck with canoeing and field hockey ducats, on the other hand, were happy to sell at face value.

Not all the competition and color took place in Stade Olympique or the surrounding arenas.

Trading of national pins and emblems vied with impromptu music and magic acts, and religious sects, for attention outside the arenas.

When one tired of the events or the bartering or "window - shopping" in the balloon-covered kiosks, there was always the opportunity to bump into a track athlete from the U.S., a judoist from Korea or a soccer - football player from Polska.

The "show" went on 24 hours a day.

It may not have had "soul" as Madame Berlioux whined, but the Montreal Olympics certainly didn't lack for things to do.

Supervisors to hear cable TV rate plea

Lesher News Bureau

MARTINEZ — A decision on joining the Association of Bay Area Government's environmental management program and a hearing on cable television installation rates headline the Tuesday's Board of Supervisors meeting.

A committee recommendation on the ABAG program and adoption of a secondary air quality mitigation program for the county will be considered at 9:30 a.m.

The board convenes at 9 a.m. in the board chambers of the county administration building, Martinez.

The cable television companies will make their pitch for higher connection rates at a 2 p.m. hearing.

Cable-vision of Walnut Creek is requesting a $100 increase in its connection fees for new subdivisions in the south side of Lafayette, Orinda, Rheem Valley, Moraga and San Ramon.

If granted the new rate would be $137.50.

Televents, Inc. of Martinez is requesting to offer its new subscribers any one of three different plans calling for increases ranging from $25 to $195.

Televents is asking for this in Antioch, Pinole, El Sobrante, Crockett, Pittsburg, West Pittsburg, Rodeo, South San Ramon and Dublin.

At 11 a.m. the board will receive bids on the proposed SPAY Clinic in Martinez and the irrigation system at Lafayette and Plea sant Hill libraries.

Joyce Sutliffe will address the board at 11:15 a.m. regarding negotiations with Associated County Employes.
